and to qualify for the new L.C.E. examination and for the L.C.E. Diploma after an additional year of practical training.

(2) that the men qualified as Overseers under the scheme introduced in 1948 and who are in the profession as apprentices or employees be given an opportunity to qualify for the L.C.E. Diploma by passing the L.C.E. Examination to be held in 1952 or later and to obtain the L.C.E. Diploma after 4 years (2 years in the overseers class and 2 years in the pro ession instead of 3 years in the school and one year in the professional for new L.C.E. students; and

(3) that the number of new admissions to L.C.E. Course in the Polytechnics be reduced from 100 to 40 in 1951, the L.C.E. courses in some Polytechnics being abolished.

The existing II year overseers students who have opted to the L.C.E. will be examined by the Polytechnics concerned and admitted to the IIIrd year L.C.E. Course, whilst those who wish to complete the present Overseers Course will be examined by the Technological Diploma Examination Board and those who pass the examination will be awarded overseers diploma on completion of the prescribed one years practical training.

As regards the I years' overseers course the few students who do not opt for the L.C.E. will be examined separately by the Technological Diploma Examination Board at the end of the II year.

3. Orders regarding the revival of the L.C.E. Course in the Engineering College, Guindy have been issued separately in the Education Department.
